WHERE RESILIENCE AND BRILLIANCE MEET.
LAW LIBRARIANS, WE SALUTE YOU.

Perhaps more than anyone else, law librarians are the bedrock of their organization. Every day, they strive to make the most of their resources, bringing order and balance to every situation. Time and again, they prove that intellect, resilience and strength can make all the difference. We’re proud to be of service to law librarians.

Visit the Librarian Resource Center at west.thomson.com/librarian, or call a Librarian Relations Manager for more information.
Welcome to the 102nd Annual Meeting and Conference of the American Association of Law Libraries. Our theme is INNOVATE, and we cannot think of a better time to celebrate our creativity and innovations than this moment in history in our nation’s capital. We have seen many changes since we met last year: a new president and federal administration, as well as significant economic changes.

As librarians, we know the importance of information in addressing the multiple challenges individuals, organizations and countries face on a day-to-day basis. We will continue to find ways to improve access to information while adapting to changes in our users’ needs—in technology and in the world. We know that our ingenuity and innovations have always equipped us to succeed. This Conference affords us the opportunity to share our innovations, learn from each other and celebrate our successes, while preparing us for the work that lies ahead.

The Annual Meeting Program Committee (AMPC) is very proud to present you with this selection of 63 AMPC-sponsored programs and four workshops. Each of these was proposed by our members, and reflects the creativity and innovative strengths of our members and our profession. We want to thank every member who submitted a program proposal; the strength of our Conference is based on our collective experiences and willingness to share.

While we want you to attend as many educational programs as you can, we also urge you to participate in many other formal and informal Annual Meeting activities. In addition to the AMPC-sponsored programs, many SISs, chapters and other groups have educational programs and a variety of meetings. The Annual Meeting Local Arrangements Committee has provided us with a wonderful selection of events to enrich our Conference experience. Please be sure to visit some of the monuments, museums and parks in our nation’s capital. Of course, take time to visit with old friends, make new ones, and share your innovations, too!

Don’t Be Like Jane — Save Hundreds of Dollars

Jane went to 11 fabulous programs—one in every A–K time slot. She wanted to take that valuable information home with her to share with her colleagues back at work. So she downloaded the 11 programs individually for $12, spending $132. But for just $99 she could have downloaded all 66 Annual Meeting programs—along with the keynote address—and brought home an entire conference’s worth of innovative tips and strategies!

Don’t be like Jane. Take advantage of the special offer to purchase the full set of educational program and keynote address recordings offered as MP3 downloads ($99/members, $149/nonmembers) or MP3 CDs ($199/members, $299/nonmembers). You’ll receive a collection of nearly 70 programs that you can access anytime, anywhere on the new AALL2go.

These discounted rates are only available during the conference. Stop by the Audio Recordings Desk in the registration area to save hundreds of dollars while gaining crucial education.

The Future of the Library—And How to Stop It

Keynote Speaker: Jonathan Zittrain

Internet cyberlaw scholar and author

With the unwitting help of its users, the runaway success of the Internet is on a path to a lockdown, ending its cycle of innovation—and facilitating unsettling new kinds of control. The first wave of Internet-centered products—iPhones, Xboxes, TiVos, etc.—cannot be easily modified by anyone except their vendors or selected partners. As these and other “tethered appliances” and applications eclipse the PC, the very nature of the Internet—its “generativity,” or innovative character—is at risk.

Drawing on generative technologies like Wikipedia that have so far survived their own successes, Jonathan Zittrain offers ideas for developing new technologies and social structures that allow users to work creatively and collaboratively, participate in solutions, and become true “netizens.” His research interests include battles for control of digital property and content, cryptography, electronic privacy, the roles of intermediaries within Internet architecture, and the useful and unobtrusive deployment of technology in education.

Zittrain is a Professor of Law at Harvard Law School and faculty co-director of the Berkman Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University. Previously, he held the Chair in Internet Governance and Regulation at Oxford University, and was a principal of the Oxford Internet Institute. He was also a visiting professor at the New York University School of Law and Stanford Law School.

Zittrain was a co-founder of the Berkman Center, where he served as its first executive director from 1997 to 2000. Before receiving his tenure this year, he was the Jack N. & Lillian R. Berkman Visiting Professor for Entrepreneurial Legal Studies at Harvard Law School. Additionally, Zittrain was co-counsel with Lawrence Lessig in Eldred v. Ashcroft, challenging the Sonny Bono Copyright Term Extension Act of 1998. The case lost 7-2 at the Supreme Court.

With students, he began Chilling Effects, a web site that tracks and archives legal threats made to Internet content producers. Google now sends its users to Chilling Effects when it has altered its search results at the behest of national governments.

Zittrain also performed the first large-scale tests of Internet filtering in China and Saudi Arabia in 2002, and as part of the OpenNet Initiative, he has co-edited a study of Internet filtering by national governments, “Access Denied: The Practice and Policy of Global Internet Filtering.” The paperback version of his book about the future of the now-intertwined Internet and PC, The Future of the Internet—And How to Stop It, was released in March 2009 from Yale University Press and Penguin UK, and under a Creative Commons license.

Zittrain holds a bachelor’s degree in cognitive science and artificial intelligence from Yale University, a J.D. from Harvard Law School, and a master’s in public administration from Harvard’s John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Jonathan Zittrain will be available to sign copies of his book at the AALL Book Store (Booth 947 in the Exhibit Hall) directly following his presentation.

Green Initiatives

Just as AALL’s efforts to maximize the power of the law library community are ongoing and ever-expanding, so, too, are our efforts to make our Annual Meeting and Conference “green,” lessening the negative impact events of this scale can have on our environment.

- AALL dramatically reduced paper consumption by building an online program and workshop proposal collection site, and by putting the Educational Program Handout Materials Collection online. Educational program evaluations are also collected online.
- Print-on-demand kiosks for handout materials now feature double-sided printers and post-consumer recycled paper.
- Plastic name badges, badge stock and elastic lanyards will be collected and recycled.
- Come to the Member Services booth in the Exhibit Hall to pick up an AALL lanyard made of recycled material for your name badge—use it again at future meetings.
- AALL’s show daily newspaper is printed with soy-based inks (as opposed to petroleum-based) and on recycled-content paper.

We are pleased to share the following green initiatives underway at our host facilities.

Washington Convention Center:

- 100% SCA post-consumer paper disposables and Green Seal certified Cojo foam hand soap used in all restrooms
- 30% post-consumer, acid-free paper used in all copy rooms
- “Know the Code” color-coded recycling compliance program
- Recyclable materials include, but are not limited to, cardboard, mixed paper, bottles and cans (glass, aluminum, plastic), fluorescent bulbs, toner cartridges and batteries
- Business community outreach for reuse of various materials, including electronics, telephones, carpet, Visqueen materials and pallets
- Exterior walls comprised of clear low-emission glass that maximizes natural light and controls temperature fluctuations
- Compact fluorescent, HID and T5 high-efficiency lighting in public areas
- An energy-conserving lighting system
- An infrastructure that supports storm water management
- All restrooms equipped with infra-red flush, low-flow urinals and faucet sensors

Renaissance Washington, D.C. (headquarters hotel):

- Recycled office paper, plastic and glass
- ENERGY STAR® certified property

A-1 Making Your ILS Web 2.0 Happy
Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 145 AB  75 Minutes
Competency: Information Technology
Target Audience: Computing, technical and public services librarians
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will evaluate three ways to enhance their integrated library system.
2) Participants will be able to integrate open source Web 2.0 technology into their OPAC design.

In this ILS-focused session, panelists will identify open source technology that will create greater functionality for users interacting with a library’s OPAC. Panelists will also identify why they felt compelled to augment their ILS with new technology, and will share what rewards and pitfalls they faced in implementing change at their libraries. Following the short panel discussion, attendees will visit up to three individual showcases in which the panelists will teach participants how to customize the relevant technology for their organization and demonstrate its implementation.

A-2 Beyond Copyright? How License Agreements and Digital Rights Management Pose Challenges to Fair Use and the Provision of Electronic or Media Services
Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 152 AB  75 Minutes
Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Law library administrators; law librarians providing electronic or media services; law librarians with an interest in copyright, licensing or Digital Rights Management (DRM) technologies
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to analyze key legal issues created by licensing or DRM.
2) Participants will be able to discuss the ethical obligations and practical difficulties of providing service under constraints imposed by licensing or DRM.

Content providers make widespread use of license agreements and Digital Rights Management technologies. Librarians can no longer assume that the traditional understanding of fair use takes precedence. This program will examine the intersection of copyright and contract, the Digital Millennium Copyright Act and its judicial interpretation, and legal theories designed to increase the scope of fair use. In addition, this program will offer a case study on dealing with the ethical obligations and practical difficulties of providing service in the current environment. What limits are necessary? Are there alternative means of providing service?

A-3 The Thurgood Marshall Papers: A Case Study in Acquiring Significant Archival Donations … Journey Through the Legacy of a Civil Rights Pioneer
Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 147 AB  75 Minutes
Competency: Core Competencies for Law Librarianship
Target Audience: All law librarians, particularly those interested in archival documents, Supreme Court history and Library of Congress collections
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify basic steps to solicit and/or secure a significant archival donation successfully, including negotiating an instrument of gift, basic processing of the materials, and troubleshooting issues that may occur.
2) Participants will discover the content of the Thurgood Marshall Papers, how the collection came to be donated to the Library of Congress, as well as its intrinsic value to historical and Supreme Court researchers.

Thurgood Marshall was a larger-than-life figure in the civil rights movement in America. His illustrious legal career spanned decades and culminated with his appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court. Over the years, his work generated thousands of documents. Nearly 174,000 of those documents make up the Thurgood Marshall Papers. Today, this collection is housed in the Library of Congress’ Manuscript Division. This program will focus on Thurgood Marshall’s donation of his papers to the Library of Congress upon his death in 1993. Participants will learn about the contents of this collection, its importance to researchers, and the controversy that arose surrounding the timing of the donation and the release of the papers.

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be informed by a USPTO representative of the resources the agency provides to the patent and trademark community.
2) Participants will engage in a dialog with the speaker to improve the electronic access and delivery of information to intellectual property researchers and attorneys.

Effective access to intellectual property information is a key component of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office’s (USPTO) mission. By disseminating this information through its public search systems and data products, the USPTO provides the public with the means to facilitate the preparation of patent and trademarks applications, avoid infringement and understand the current state of the art as a basis for new ideas. This interactive presentation will focus on the new and innovative approaches being explored by the USPTO to more effectively provide access to the USPTO’s extensive body of scientific knowledge. The interactive portion of this presentation will focus on a topic of key interest: improving automated access to the USPTO’s systems so that patent information can be delivered to all users, including data mining users, in an efficient manner. The presentation will engage the audience in a discussion on key data dissemination issues, and ideas on approaches to improve the electronic access and delivery of information to intellectual property professionals.

A-5 Legal Research Questions on the Bar Exam: Preparing Our Students

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 151 AB  75 Minutes

Competency: Teaching

Target Audience: Law library directors, legal research instructors, private law librarians, reference librarians

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will learn the background and current status of the issue concerning inclusion of legal research questions on the bar examination.
2) Participants will gain an understanding of the relationship between student mastery of specialized legal research course material and student success on possible future bar examination legal research questions.

The President of the National Conference of Bar Examiners, Erica Moeser, will join a group of academic law librarians and two law library directors in discussing the issue of legal research questions on the bar exam. The group will also explore the best method of preparing law students for legal research bar exam questions.

A-6 Here Today, Gone Tomorrow? The Future of Print Periodicals in Law Libraries

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 146 C  75 Minutes

Competency: Collection Care and Management

Target Audience: Technical services and collection development librarians and library managers who are involved in the selection, acquisitions and maintenance of periodicals collections

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify vendors’ plans for digitization of law reviews and journals.
2) Participants will be able to assess the impact of the e-journals and law reviews on collection maintenance and services to the patrons.

The number of law reviews, journals and other serial publications appearing in digital format has increased dramatically in recent years. HeinOnline’s attempt to digitize each law review title up to the last issue published is making many libraries reconsider format preferences in collection development and retention policies. This program presents scenarios of how electronic periodicals have changed collection development policies, and how libraries are managing and maintaining periodicals collections. Explore collection development policies from a recently-established library, a long-established library that has adopted changes in its collection development policy to prefer electronic format of journals, vendor plans to continue a digitization project of law reviews, and a non-academic library’s explanation of how e-journals have impacted its collection development and service to the public.

B-1 Emerging from the Cocoon: Innovative Ways to Reteach Legal Research to Externs and Summer Associates

Level: Advanced  WCC-Room 145 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Teaching
Target Audience: Librarians who oversee externs and summer associates lacking adequate research skills; instructors of legal research

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to design a remedial legal research program for short-term employees (externs, summer associates) utilizing various traditional and online tools.
2) Participants will be able to identify obstacles with current legal research programs that do not center on real-world research methods and practical problems.

Librarians who interact with externs and summer associates are sometimes dismayed by the lack of legal research skills shown by current law students. Often, librarians must reteach basic skills to these short-term employees. This moderated panel discussion will focus on ways in which we can assist law students and recent graduates to develop better legal research skills. One panelist in this program will describe how legal research is currently being taught in law schools, highlighting what works and what doesn’t. Another panelist will describe how summer associates are reintroduced to basic research concepts at a law firm. The last panelist will describe how externs in a court are given opportunities to relearn skills at their own pace using online technology. Speakers will touch upon generational issues, use of online materials vs. traditional materials, Web 2.0 tools, and student learning styles.

B-2 Success for the Future: Creating and Implementing a Library Succession Plan

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 146 C  60 Minutes

Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: Library managers and supervisory staff, as well as any librarian faced with institutional restructuring

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify and analyze areas of potential change in their library, including leadership, professional development and future hiring.
2) Participants will be able to create a new or revise an existing library succession plan.

Library employees own a vast amount of collected knowledge regarding policies, procedures, library history and personalities. Tapping into and preserving this knowledge base is essential to the future functionality of an individual library. Libraries are dynamic institutions and must continue to be vital, adaptable and responsive. How do we move forward without leaving behind the important aspects of a library’s history? This panel will discuss the necessity and realities of creating and implementing a library succession plan that can help guide library managers and staff through inevitable changes and transitions.

B-3 Taxation Without Representation: An Overview of the D.C. Legislative Process and Research

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 147 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Reference librarians and other librarians who are interested in learning about District of Columbia home rule and representation

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be prepared to perform research on issues of D.C. law.
2) Participants will be able to explain how the issues of home rule and representation affect D.C. citizens.

The District of Columbia, as a capital city established under the United States Constitution, is not a state, and the local government structure was formed by an act of Congress. Consequently, the District of Columbia receives special treatment under the law, limiting the representation of its citizens in the federal government and subjecting the legislation passed by the Council of the District of Columbia to congressional review. Presenters will focus on this special treatment. One speaker will provide an overview of the legislative history of efforts seeking the vote for D.C. citizens, and another will describe the consequences of this special treatment. The final speaker will identify issues unique to researching the laws of the District of Columbia, such as how the federal home rule statute affects the effective date of the legislation of the Council of the District of Columbia. Attendees will leave with an understanding of the complex and unique issues that may arise when researching local D.C. law.

B-4 Understanding the Mean: How the Average Law Librarian Can Encourage Empirical Research Initiatives
Level: Introductory
Room: WCC-Room 150 AB
Duration: 60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Librarians who are interested in conducting empirical research and implementing support programs for empirical research

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify some of the resources and methods utilized in conducting quantitative empirical research.
2) Participants will be able to select elements of successful empirical research programs to incorporate in empirical research initiatives at their organizations.

The U.S. Supreme Court has long acknowledged the usefulness of information produced by social science research methods. In 2003, the Supreme Court cited statistical evidence in two cases. Recognizing the persuasive power of research concluded through empirical methods, court, firm and academic librarians are now contemplating how they can add value to the empirical research process. The program will provide an introduction to empirical research methods and assist librarians in understanding how two academic law libraries and a law and legal studies library at an academic library have supported empirical legal research initiatives. Speakers will discuss their experiences in supporting empirical legal research initiatives and provide advice on the types of support “average” law librarians can provide. Speakers will also suggest avenues for law librarians to develop a greater familiarity with empirical research methods.

B-5 Lincoln, the Law, and Libraries
Level: Introductory
Room: WCC-Room 151 AB
Duration: 60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Librarians who are interested in learning about Abraham Lincoln’s place in American legal history, or the creation and maintenance of scholarly reference works and major special collections

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to explain the significance of Abraham Lincoln’s career as a lawyer and president by examining copies of his original manuscripts and legal documents.
2) Participants will be able to describe the processes involved in creating and maintaining scholarly reference works and major special collections, and developing effective access tools for them.

Celebrate the bicentennial of Abraham Lincoln’s birth by exploring his connection to modern libraries. The panel of speakers for this program will present an in-depth look at several important resources for Lincoln’s original documents and papers. First, the panel will examine a traditional resource for historical research, the archival collection, with a behind-the-scenes look at the Lincoln Manuscripts at the Library of Congress. Next, they will describe the Lincoln Legal Papers Project, which has produced two seminal reference works providing contemporary researchers with both print and electronic access to Lincoln’s legal materials. Finally, the speakers will share their expertise and insight into the complex processes involved in developing and maintaining their collections of historical documents and ensuring access to the materials in various formats. This program will provide librarians with a unique perspective on the Lincoln legacy and its role in their profession.

B-6 MarcEdit: A Magic Wand for MARC Records
Level: Intermediate
Room: WCC-Room 152 AB
Duration: 60 Minutes

Competency: Collection Care and Management

Target Audience: Technical services librarians, metadata/system librarians, database maintenance administrators, digital collection managers

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to demonstrate MarcEdit tools and functions, as well as explain MarcEdit’s API for extended development.
2) Participants will be able to batch edit metadata records using MarcEdit and to generate MARC records from OAI-PMH source sets.

This presentation introduces MarcEdit, a free downloadable metadata software suite created by Terry Reese, Digital Production Unit Head at Oregon State University. The tool is designed specifically for large-batch record processing, including batch editing MARC records, character set conversions, and record extractions from data files. MarcEdit provides a method to customize and correct vendor records outside of the ILS system to avoid potential damage to the existing records in a catalog. It is also a great tool for database maintenance. The presentation will cover MARC record editing using MarcEdit, discuss topics related to processing XML metadata, and investigate MarcEdit’s built-in OAI metadata harvester, which provides a simplified method for generating MARC records from OAI repositories (like DSpace, Fedora or CONTENTdm).

Clara Liao, Coordinator and Moderator, Georgetown University Law Library
Terry Reese, Oregon State University
2) Participants will have a greater understanding of the process by which regulations promulgated by federal agencies are incorporated into the Code of Federal Regulations.

This session will feature one speaker from the Office of Law Revision Counsel from the U.S. House of Representatives, who will speak about the process followed to incorporate an act of Congress into the U.S. Code, and a second speaker from the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), who will discuss the process followed to codify a regulation promulgated by an agency into a section of the Code of Federal Regulations.

C-3 Latest Trends in Library Automation: Building Creative and Inspiring Discovery Platforms

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 152 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Information Technology

Target Audience: Librarians who want their patrons to use their information resources effectively and innovatively

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will assess the latest library automation innovations and discovery platforms.
2) Participants will better understand how libraries can meet patron expectations.

Marshall Breeding will address next-generation library interfaces and what the future holds for merging currently disparate resources, or silos of information. Some next-generation discovery platforms include AquaBrowser, Encore, Endeca, Primo, WorldCat Local and NELLCO’s Universal Search Solution. Breeding is a VIP to AALL 2009, sponsored by ALL-SIS, the Library Journal author of “Automation System Marketplace,” and a Computers In Libraries columnist. C-4 Law Libraries and the Access to Justice Revolution

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 150 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Core Competencies for Law Librarianship

Target Audience: Law librarians and law library stakeholders

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to plan strategically to meet the new environment fostered on their libraries by the Access to Justice Revolution.
2) Participants will be able to predict and prepare for changes in their local legal community as the Access to Justice Revolution advances.

The legal system is undergoing a little-recognized revolutionary change as it transforms itself from a case-resolving system into a system of access to justice for all. Components of this revolutionary change include: the increase in the number of self-represented litigants and the courts’ recognition of their obligation to respond to that challenge, courts using technology as a self-service gateway for the public, the campaign for “civil Gideon” (a right to counsel in some civil cases), and revisions to the ABA Model Code of Judicial Conduct, which redefine the ways a judge may engage with self-represented litigants in their courtrooms. Richard Zorza, a national leader in many of these interrelated movements, will analyze these critical trends and their implications for law libraries.

C-5 Reporting for Duty: Military Information and Its Application to Legal Research

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 151 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Reference and research librarians from all types of libraries

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify various types of military publications and resources of interest to legal researchers.
2) Participants will be able to compare and critique print and online resources used in researching military law.

Recent world events have resulted in the increasing intersection of military information and legal research. From Supreme Court cases addressing the military commissions at Guantanamo Bay to the Haditha court martial trials, law librarians have been constantly drawn into this intersection. However, to the legal researcher, the world of military information can appear both complex and secretive. The first presenter will shed light on this world by providing an overview of how the legal research community can access military publications and resources. The second presenter will analyze and contrast the essential print and electronic resources used in conducting research in military law. The program will include a discussion of research methodologies in an area of law that has recently been thrust into the headlines.

C-6 Running a Business: Practical MBA Solutions for Your Library

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 147 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Library Management

Target Audience: Registrants with management responsibilities (head librarians, directors, managers), including first-time managers; no MBA required

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to apply MBA tips and tools from the program to the workplace.
2) Participants will be able to assess their current skills and identify weaknesses where tips and tools can help.

This program will discuss practical tips and tools that are learned in the course of pursuing the MBA degree and have been implemented and applied daily in a library career. Working as a manager in a library requires the skills of running a business, and in turn, influences the success of the overall organization. Examples applied in law librarianship may include tools learned in MBA courses such as accounting, finance, human resource management, strategic management, organizational behavior, marketing, administrative strategy and/or project management. As a specific example, a human resource management course may have prepared a library manager to learn how to conduct a performance evaluation, how to hire staff and/or how to deal with personnel issues. These are not items that are traditionally taught in library degree programs. Rather, library managers typically need to learn on the job without the MBA expertise to help guide them. Two firm librarians—one a recent MBA graduate, the other a more seasoned grad—will discuss their experiences and provide examples that attendees can apply in their environment. A professor from an MBA program will discuss how applicable these tools are for managers in the ever-changing corporate world.

D-1 | I Want My Web 2.0: Lessons from the Web 2.0 Challenge Everyone Can Use (or, "Get Your MySpace for Nothing and Your RSS for Free")

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 145 AB
60 Minutes

Competency: Information Technology
Target Audience: Librarians in all settings who are interested in teaching the effective use of new technologies

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will compare the experiences of the national program Web 2.0 Challenge with similar programs on a local level.
2) Participants will be able to design and implement Web 2.0 online learning programs for their institution or chapter.

Since Tim O'Reilly coined the term “Web 2.0” in 2004, the Internet has exploded with web-based applications for communicating, networking, organizing knowledge, and streamlining current awareness. As information stewards, law librarians must become capable of assessing and implementing these tools to expand their outreach and educate their patrons about the new social context for information. Panelists will share how they designed and ran a five-week online program to teach fellow law librarians about Web 2.0 tools, and explain what they learned along the way. The Web 2.0 Challenge was run nationally in 2008 for AALL members. Panelists will identify tools that librarians can use to plan a local learning program. Attendees will discover which Web 2.0 tools the course participants found most useful in their libraries, and review some of the successful projects that have been implemented as a result of the Web 2.0 Challenge.

D-2 | Charting a New Course Mid-Career

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 146 C
60 Minutes

Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: Private sector law librarians with numerous years' experience in the profession

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will gain an understanding of the impact that the economy is having on law firm structure and the practice of law, and how this impact affects law librarianship.
2) Participants will learn tips for networking, refreshing their skills and revitalizing their resumes as they assess their respective decisions regarding the future of their careers.

Law firm mergers have resulted in the displacement of one firm’s library staff, and short-sighted cost containment measures have resulted in the elimination of library directors and library staffs being pushed under the auspices of other departments. Now, due to the downturn in the economy, private law firm librarians are very vulnerable. Some firms are conducting reductions in force and some are terminating individuals for cause. It is time to assess the landscape and decide whether librarians want to remain librarians. If so, how can they make their positions more secure, keep their skills current and prove their worth? If not, what is their next career? For what profession have their skills and experiences prepared them?

D-3 | Brave New Frontier of Government Documents Librarianship

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 147 AB
60 Minutes

Competency: Collection Care and Management
Target Audience: All librarians who are responsible for or interested in federal government documents collections, and those who work with or supervise them

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify the tools for managing a federal government documents collection and will be able to clarify practices by asking questions of collection experts.
2) Participants will learn how to get involved with various government documents organizations.

A significant part of law library collections includes federal government documents. The knowledge of collecting and managing them is a valuable asset for every law library. Some law libraries receive these publications through the Federal Depository Library Program of the U.S. Government Printing Office and must adhere to the rules and guidelines of this federal program. This presentation features a panel of government documents librarians who will discuss their profession, how they came to be documents librarians; and provide an introduction to practices, collection management tools, and support available through training and connections to professional groups. This program will serve as a guide for action and connection for new and seasoned documents librarians and their colleagues.

D-5 Managing Employees Across Generations
Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 151 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Core Competencies for Law Librarianship
Target Audience: Managers in any law library setting
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify and understand issues that arise when managing employees from different generations.
2) Participants will explore different management techniques that have proved effective when managing employees of different generations.

This program will address both the positive and negative situations that arise when a manager is overseeing employees of different generations. The panel will also provide effective management tips, tricks and techniques, and will share perspectives from a variety of management experiences. These include:

- managing individuals of every generation (high school to soon-to-be retired)
- managing several Gen X/Gen Y employees who have only been in the profession for a few years
- managing student workers who are one’s own age or younger—who would often rather see their boss as a buddy—as well as employees who are much older
- managing employees who are all Boomers

In addition, Connie Crosby will share insights from her article, “Tao of Law Librarianship: Reaching Across the Generations in the Profession” (www.llrx.com/columns/tao9.htm).

D-6 Beyond the Walls of the United Nations: Exploring U.N. Databases
Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 152 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Librarians who are both familiar and unfamiliar with the databases of the United Nations
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to discuss video production guidelines.
2) Participants will be able to list key steps for creating a video.

Libraries are always seeking new methods for communicating services and policies to their patrons and communities. Web sites and RSS feeds have extensively enhanced marketing efforts beyond traditional print and graphics methodology, and audiovisual applications for the web have recently become much easier to create, manage and use. However, now that the audiovisual moment is right, you still need to make “the movie” before you can put it on the web or vodcast it. This program will review the creation of a video tour of a law library, providing step-by-step guidelines and methods for creating a video—script, storyboard, cast, location selection, equipment selection, filming, editing, credits and final print.

E-1 So You Want to Make a Movie: Simple Steps for Creating Videos for Web Distribution and Vodcasting
Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 145 AB  30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Library managers and public service librarians
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify and describe new United Nations databases.
2) Participants will be able to identify and describe new United Nations databases.

United Nations documentation contains a wealth of information about global concerns and international law issues. Legal information is constantly changing and the importance of timely and accurate information is imperative in the field of law. Understanding how to navigate the abundance of information made available in the United Nations sources, including the United Nations Official Document System (ODS), the United Nations Bibliographic Information System (UNBISnet) and the United Nations Info Quest (UN-I-Que) can only enhance a librarian’s ability to retrieve information and, therefore, supply patrons with fast, comprehensive and accurate information. Many librarians are aware of the amount of information on the United Nations web site but are unfamiliar with how to locate and search these databases. Librarians from the Dag Hammarskjöld Library will demonstrate different searching techniques and will also identify and describe new U.N. databases.

E-2 Distribution and Vodcasting

So You Want to Make a Movie: Simple Steps for Creating Videos for Web Distribution and Vodcasting

Level: Introductory

WCC-Room 152 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Library managers and public service librarians
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to discuss video production guidelines.
2) Participants will be able to list key steps for creating a video.

Libraries are always seeking new methods for communicating services and policies to their patrons and communities. Web sites and RSS feeds have extensively enhanced marketing efforts beyond traditional print and graphics methodology, and audiovisual applications for the web have recently become much easier to create, manage and use. Laura E. Ray, Coordinator and Speaker, Cleveland State University, Cleveland Marshall College of Law Library
Jessica Matthewson, Cleveland State University, Cleveland Marshall College of Law Library
3) Participants may even find that it’s possible, and personally rewarding, to consider more than one type of law library in their career plan.

Working in a law firm library is different from working in either an academic, court or county law library. To help those newer to the profession as well as those thinking of changing their law library environment, this panel will discuss the uniqueness of different law libraries and what it is like to work in one or the other. Law firm libraries are cost centers—many law firm librarians bill the client for their time. At the same time, in law firms there can be a sense of urgency regardless of cost. In an academic law library, you have the pressure to teach as well as publish. In a county law library setting, you are faced with the challenges of supporting people who often have nowhere else to go—the per se client for example. In a court library you may be called upon to assist a judge or judge’s clerk. Learning how to balance cost effectiveness vs. urgency, legal vs. nonlegal and print vs. electronic is “everyday fare” for a law librarian. Each law library setting has its own rewards and challenges. This panel will help you find your best fit.

E-4 Finding Services for Seniors (Ourselves and Others)

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 150 AB
30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Librarians who need to know about the options and elder law resources available to serve their patrons or to make personal decisions

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify relevant information resources.
2) Participants will be able to evaluate alternatives and make informed referrals or decisions.

Ellen M. Klem, Associate Staff Director of the American Bar Association Commission on Law and Aging, is a recognized expert on the resources available to older Americans, as well as the challenges facing them. She will describe the various options available to older people including those which require advance planning, such as long-term care insurance. She will then describe the information resources available so that attendees can make useful referrals as well as timely and informed decisions for themselves and others.

Web tools such as mashups and tailored RSS feeds can provide organizations that can help you track and research legislation, using urgent alerts and why we rely on you to make your voice heard! We will also explore some Web 2.0 resources offered by other nonprofit organizations.

The AALL Government Relations Office works with AALL members to influence policy. It offers many resources to help keep you informed and maximize librarian efficiency.

Emily Feldman, Coordinator and Speaker, AALL Government Relations Office

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify and apply techniques to maximize their work effectiveness.
2) Participants will be able to evaluate and select technology that will facilitate greater efficiency.

A recent survey of one-person libraries found that a common challenge was “not enough time to do it all ... and well.” In the current legal economic environment, where resources are becoming scarce, librarians find the need to be innovative with how they carry out their tasks. This session addresses that challenge. The speakers will explore and showcase techniques and technologies that expand and maximize librarian efficiency.

F-1 Getting to Yes: Developing Effective Salary and Compensation Negotiation Skills
Level: Intermediate WCC-Room 145 AB 60 Minutes

Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: All law librarians

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to better understand the dynamics of effective negotiation.
2) Participants who are incumbents or applicants for new positions will be able to identify the key steps required for negotiating salary and compensation.

F-2 Law Librarians Abroad: Is a Foreign Study Program for You?
Level: Intermediate WCC-Room 146 C 60 Minutes

Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: Academic librarians with foreign/international interests

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to assess the benefits and drawbacks of law librarian participation in foreign study programs.
2) Participants will be equipped to design a plan for assisting with foreign study programs in their law schools.

This program will present the experiences of four to five law librarians who have reached beyond traditional roles to teach, direct and administer law study abroad programs in Austria, Brazil, China, France and India. The panel will present the advantages and drawbacks of having law librarians participate in study abroad programs, as well as highlight how a well-managed study abroad program can provide significant benefits to the librarian, the college and the profession overall. Panelists will discuss (1) how they became involved in study abroad and solidified support from their colleges, (2) techniques for developing courses, (3) how their experiences expanded their managerial skills, and (4) the impact of including law librarians in the program on the student attendees. Participants will leave the program equipped to design a plan for assisting with foreign study programs in their respective law schools. The panel discussion will be followed by a short question period when participants may ask advice or add relevant commentary.

Native American Rights Fund (NARF) and the National Congress of American Indians, and consists of a working group of more than 200 professionals. In conjunction with NARF’s legal staff, librarians and webmaster, the Project hosts a comprehensive web site on Indian cases being monitored or pending before the Court, including related research materials. This program will discuss the project’s development and the essential elements of an effective online tool for a coordinated group advocacy approach (relating to staffing, technology and communication).

F-3 Marketing Mojo: Get Smart with Design
Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 147 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Core Competencies for Law Librarianship
Target Audience: Librarians who are responsible for the marketing and promotion of their library’s services or those who want to make themselves look good

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will learn to recognize the four basic principles of good design.
2) Participants will learn simple tips to implement and improve marketing materials using the principles of good design.

Have you ever looked at a newsletter or brochure and knew that something was not right, but could not figure out what was wrong?
This program introduces the four basic concepts of design and teaches you how to recognize and fix design flaws. Visual representations of our ideas and messages market best when the information is clear and concise. While the advertising industry hires professional graphic designers, this workshop will address the basic building blocks to empower novice designers to give new life to their products.
Implementing innovative and creative design is an essential element and key to success in library marketing. Librarians need to create a “package” and a style that tells everyone that this is the library calling!

F-4 Strategic Alliance: The Tribal Supreme Court Project
Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 150 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Librarians who are responsible for current awareness services within their organizations and the relevancy of this work to interdepartmental cooperative projects

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to describe an example of how a group has coordinated legal resources to strengthen advocacy and improve their win-loss record in the U.S. Supreme Court.
2) Participants will be able to summarize key strategies and skills needed in the creation of an online tool for legal advocacy and collaboration.

The Tribal Supreme Court Project was formed in 2001 in response to a series of U.S. Supreme Court cases that negatively affected tribal sovereignty. Its purpose is to strengthen tribal advocacy

F-5 Taming Information Overload: Addressing Law Firm Current Awareness Needs
Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 151 AB  60 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Private law librarians who are responsible for providing current awareness within their firms

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to evaluate the current awareness needs of their organization.
2) Participants will be able to identify the tools and best practices necessary to implement a current awareness program in their firm.

Recent surveys indicate legal professionals feel overwhelmed with information, spending too much time sorting through content that ends up being useless. A significant challenge facing librarians today is getting the right information into the right user’s hands at the right time. With the explosion of content available and now required in the business and practice of law, finding the best method to deliver current awareness information has librarians clamoring for solutions.
Once a current awareness program is implemented, it is a dynamic and evolving process due to attorney demands and technology advancements. This program will help librarians assess their firm’s current awareness needs, identify the available tools, work on an implementation plan, and outline methods to continue the evolution of the program.

F-6 Taking the Aggravation Out of Aggregators: An Update on Aggregator-Neutral Bibliographic Records

Level: Intermediate

Target Audience: Technical services, systems and public services librarians and administrators

Learning Outcomes:

1) Participants will be able to discuss various issues associated with aggregator-neutral bibliographic records for electronic journals and monographs: availability, creation, standards, purchase, customization, quality, maintenance, catalog display, etc.

2) Participants will be able to assess the viability of using aggregator-neutral bibliographic records to provide access to electronic journals and monographs in their local catalogs.

An aggregator-neutral bibliographic record provides access to all versions of an online resource using one MARC record. This type of record allows for consolidated access without cluttering the catalog with multiple bibliographic records for the same electronic resource available from different vendors. Now that legal databases such as HeinOnline and MOML include (and often duplicate) electronic monographs, this issue is coming to the forefront of our local catalogs. Come hear how a respected SCCTP trainer and a vendor cataloger create aggregator-neutral bibliographic records, easing patron access to electronic journals and monographs available from multiple vendors. Learn and consider the issues related to the creation and adoption of aggregator-neutral records: availability, creation, standards, purchase, customization, quality, maintenance, display, etc.

G-2 Unmasking a Marvel of an Idea in D.C.: How Graphic Literature Can Be Supertools for Law Librarians

Level: Intermediate

Target Audience: Instructors or public services librarians who are interested in marketing or recruitment; pop culture mavens

Learning Outcomes:

1) Participants will be able to identify and use specific popular culture references to improve instruction, marketing of services and recruitment.

2) Participants will be able to improve communication among varying generations, social groups and types of learners.

This program will illustrate how allusions to graphic literature, especially when directly linked with law and/or librarianship, can bridge social and generational gaps, supplement instruction (with shared experiences from the panel), promote library services, support diversity, and foster recruitment to our profession. Today’s law student, young attorney, client or juror often uses pop culture references to define the world. Attention spans are short, learning styles are different, and image is—if not everything—a pretty big thing. With the growing number of successful comic/manga-based movies, television shows and merchandise, the influence that comics have on society is as great as it has ever been. Here’s how law librarians can Bat-Channel the medium to their benefit.

6-3 Evaluating Federal e-Life Cycle Management—A Town Meeting with OSTP, NARA and GPO

Level: Intermediate WCC Room 147 AB 75 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Users of government information from all types of law libraries; law librarians who manage and use electronic federal government information

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to measure the effectiveness of the new Administration, NARA and GPO in ensuring the full life cycle of electronic government information.
2) Participants will be able to compare and contrast the policies that drive each agency in meeting its responsibilities in the online environment.

AALL has long been committed to holding the federal government responsible for ensuring the entire lifecycle of electronic government information, from creation to preservation. This responsibility becomes especially critical when government entities eliminate print in favor of electronic without ensuring the need for permanent access to official, authentic online legal information. High-level officials from the new Administration’s Office of Science and Technology Policy, the National Archives and Records Administration and the Government Printing Office will each tackle these important issues from their unique perspective. This program will explore the roles, responsibilities and policies of each entity, which, while different, are crucial to the success of federal e-government. Join us to assess how well these government agencies are meeting the digital information needs of the legal community and the public.

6-4 WYDSIWYG: What You Don’t See Is What You Get

Level: Intermediate WCC Room 150 AB 75 Minutes

Competency: Information Technology

Target Audience: Library management, computing service librarians and librarians who are responsible for web site designers

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to design a technology project plan in the context of making web sites compliant with section 508 of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

2) Participants will be able to implement methods to identify and experience how utilizing these tools can improve web site navigation for all users.

In this fascinating session you will learn how the commitment of all parties involved in the web presence of a law school has improved the web experience of students and visitors with disabilities. The session will include a practical demonstration of how a person with visual disabilities “sees” a web site. Panelists will demonstrate how software and common web design trends can improve web site navigation for all users. The program will finish with a call to action to make the web more friendly for people with disabilities by reviewing resources made available through the Computing Services Special Interest Section’s Adaptive Technologies web site.

6-5 What’s in a Name? Trademark Searching, Services and Domain Names

Level: Intermediate WCC Room 151 AB 75 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Beginner and mid-level law librarians and other information professionals who are responsible for supporting trademark research needs of a user community

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to develop and execute trademark search strategies necessary to support their intellectual property (IP) practice, which will lead to the awareness of key trademark products and services to aid in consultations with legal and support staff.
2) Participants will be able to implement methods to identify and evaluate their organizations’ trademark research needs and provide valuable input regarding information resources to aid end users in choosing the appropriate trademark service.

As law firms evolve and broaden their practices to include IP groups, the urgent need arises for librarians to quickly understand the areas of law involved and the services available to assist with research. IP attorneys rely on the librarian to help guide them in either conducting a preliminary trademark search or suggesting the appropriate services to use. This program addresses the basic strategies involved in conducting a preliminary trademark search and the creative ways to look at a request. In addition, this program will educate librarians on the services available to end users, allowing them to better serve the needs of attorneys and/or legal staff. There will also be a discussion on common law research focusing on domain name searching and how it fits into a trademark search, including services available and any limitations on searching. The panel is comprised of expert trademark and domain name researchers who will individually address proven trademark and domain name research methods and offer practical advice regarding available services.

6-6 We Don’t Need Copyright to Put an Article on Our Network, Do We?

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 152 AB  75 Minutes

Competency: Library Management

Target Audience: Librarians who need a better understanding of the implications of fair use in today’s digital world

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to assess the need for copyright permissions in a restricted environment, such as an intranet, electronic reserve or class web page.
2) Participants will be able to explain the legal rationale used to determine when it is appropriate to pay copyright fees for materials used on an intranet, e-reserve or class web page.

The past year has witnessed increased litigation and threat of litigation against colleges and universities—for example, the suit against Georgia State University, regarding materials placed on intranets, e-reserves and class web sites. The use of library reserves, course packs and class web sites has changed radically with the growth of the digital environment. First, the use of paper decreased rapidly over the past five years as schools turned to digital materials. Now, some schools are seeing a decrease in the use of electronic reserves as faculty increasingly use class web sites and course management software such as Blackboard. This program will discuss the process for determining whether copyright permission should be sought for materials used in intranets, electronic reserves and on course web sites. Speakers will examine the legal justification, litigation risks, and legal basis for making appropriate decisions and policies in view of the library’s fair use rights and current litigation climate.

H-1 So You Think You Can Teach: Keeping the Audience Awake and Learning Alive

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 145 AB  90 Minutes

Competency: Teaching

Target Audience: Individuals who are involved in training sessions, seminar presentations and teaching

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will learn imaginative, clear and exciting teaching techniques that engage audiences.
2) Participants will be able to assess teaching styles to adapt to their instructional experience.

Students and lawyers view legal research lectures as dull. Though lawyers and professors value efficient and effective legal research skills, teaching these skills in a captivating manner is a challenge. These five lecturers will demonstrate five methods that involve student interaction and participation. The lecturers will actually teach brief lessons. Various methods include course management systems, video, anecdotes, games and props. Presenters will encourage instructors to incorporate enthusiasm into their sessions by teaching the subject matter with passion. Presenters will discuss the pros and cons of using these techniques with the audience.

H-2 Web 2.0: Driving Innovation in the Law Firm Library

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 146 C  90 Minutes

Competency: Information Technology

Target Audience: Law firm librarians who need to understand how new web technologies can foster collaboration and deliver library services

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to assess the benefits and pitfalls of emerging Web 2.0 technologies from three perspectives: library management, knowledge management and lawyer training.
2) Participants will be able to build a convincing business case for Web 2.0 technologies to firm management and other decision-makers.

The presentation begins with an overview of the benefits of Web 2.0 as part of an overall Knowledge Management strategy. The program will explain what the benefits are to lawyers and clients, how to calculate ROI and demonstrate why law librarians should lead the process. After a discussion of the underlying theory driving the adoption of Web 2.0 technology, the nuts and bolts of building and deploying Web 2.0 technologies will be reviewed, including showing which technologies pay off the best (comparison of tools) and how to get buy-in from management and adoption by end users. Part of this program will look at how to integrate new technologies with existing infrastructure. The third perspective of Web 2.0 concerns teaching lawyers how to work in a knowledge-sharing environment. This part of the program will provide guidance on how to set up a training program in the law library to help lawyers master the tools they need for sharing information in their daily practice. The program addresses how librarians can encourage lawyers to rely on them for expertise in identifying and using the right resources.

H-3 Here's to Your (Digital Archive's) Good Health! Auditing and Evaluating Digital Preservation Projects
Level: Intermediate WCC-Room 147 AB 90 Minutes

Competency: Collection Care and Management
Target Audience: Librarians who are involved in planning, managing or maintaining digital archiving and preservation efforts
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to audit the long-term viability of their digital preservation programs, using the core criteria for trusted digital repositories set forth by the digital preservation community.
2) Participants will be able to articulate collection-specific assessment parameters for the ongoing evaluation of the status and progress of their digital preservation projects.

So, you’ve digitized your treasures in special collections. You’ve harvested state task force reports that were only available online. Or maybe you’ve accumulated an institutional repository full of digital scholarship. Your library’s digital collections are valuable and unique, and preserving and ensuring future access to them is critical. Auditing and evaluation must be integrated into any digital preservation program to ensure its long-term viability. This program will focus on the practical application of best practices and core criteria in evaluating digital preservation projects. Discover how criteria set forth by the RLG-National Archives Certification of Digital Archives Project, as well as qualitative and quantitative evaluation parameters, can be feasibly implemented in the evaluation of digital preservation projects from the law library community and beyond.

H-4 Thinking About Treaties: Interpretation, in Force and on the Internet
Level: Advanced WCC-Room 150 AB 90 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Reference librarians, legal research instructors and other professionals who are interested in finding treaties
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will learn the process of treaty creation, implementation and interpretation.
2) Participants will learn where to find treaties: in print and online (free and subscription), bilateral and multilateral, current and historical, in force and not in force.

In March 2008, the U.S. Supreme Court decided the case of Medellin v. Texas, 128 S.Ct. 1346, wherein the Court held that neither an ICJ decision nor a unilateral executive order could execute a non-self-executing treaty. The court further held that a treaty is non-self-executing unless it explicitly states that it is self-executing. Creative scholarship and treaty interpretation on both sides of the argument ensued and continues. Two scholars closely involved in treaty interpretation, one of them also part of a new ASIL-ABA Section on International Law Task Force on Treaties and U.S. Law, will offer and consider new paths to locating valid treaties. Because librarians may be forced to reconsider the meaning of “Treaties in Force” and have a better understanding of treaties generally, a librarian speaker will sort through treaty text databases and prepare a handout of what can be found where, through the most effective means of finding scholarship and other secondary sources related to treaty interpretation and international law.

H-5 Annual Legislative and Regulatory Update
Level: Intermediate WCC-Room 151 AB 90 Minutes

Competency: Core Competencies for Law Librarianship
Target Audience: AALL members who want updates on government information policy issues, including the work of the AALL Government Relations Office; all librarians who are interested in information policy and legislative advocacy
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify the AALL positions and policies on a variety of information policy issues.
2) Participants will learn about the activities of the Government Relations Office, as well as legislative and information policy issues affecting the Association and librarians.

2) the present status of the Guidelines’ adoption at state level as addressed by a major policy project aimed at reconciling public access and privacy issues in an era of evolving electronic visibility.
The Conference of Chief Justices/Conference of State Court Administrators Guidelines embody an innovative strategy for building consensus between privacy advocates and transparency advocates in the ongoing debate about public access to electronic court records. They are the result of a policy development effort initially undertaken by the Justice Management Institute and the National Center for State Courts in 2000, and subsequently assisted by funding received from the State Justice Institute beginning in 2001. Conducted on behalf of both CCJ and COSCA, this effort involved many complex tasks, including the compilation of views from key groups along a wide spectrum of opinion. The Guidelines were endorsed by both conferences in 2002. This effort was augmented by a 2005 follow-up report designed to facilitate implementation in three areas: educating citizens about public access issues, offering further thoughts about family court records, and building internal policies for training court personnel in applying public access rules. Both sponsoring organizations continue to assist states and their court systems in addressing these issues and tracking their subsequent development. This program will focus upon three principal themes: 1) how the Guidelines were built to balance the public’s right-to-know in relation to personal privacy needs; 2) the present status of the Guidelines’ adoption at state level as reflected by current policies—four years after the latest progress report; and 3) projected future trends in both law and policy as all 50 jurisdictions may respond to electronic access concerns.

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify the differences between traditional public access to paper court records in clerks’ offices and open online access through the Internet.
2) Participants will be able to review how these differences were addressed by a major policy project aimed at reconciling public access and privacy issues in an era of evolving electronic visibility.

The AALL Guide to Fair Practices for Legal Publishers outlines best practices for the publishing industry. When publishers step over the line, can they be stopped? One law librarian put a halt to illegal publishing practices by putting the law on our side. Hear the story of how our Super Law Librarian got mad, got an attorney, and got us over a million dollars back! The attorney who handled the matter will review the case, and will inform us of the legal steps necessary for stopping bad practices. We will look at the highlights of: The AALL Guide to Fair Business Practices for Legal Publishers, a handful of the guide, and a handout of the agreement between the State of Florida Office of the Attorney General and the publisher.

Tina Furlow, Office of Attorney General, State of Florida Office
Betsy L. Stupski, Office of Attorney General

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to recognize unfair business practices.
2) Participants will learn how to take action against illegal practices and receive a refund.

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 145 AB  60 Minutes
Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: Librarians who are responsible for incoming library material and the budget

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify six elements of an innovative idea after completing a model assessment during the program.
2) Participants will be able to utilize four techniques for communicating ideas that are understood, remembered and have a lasting impact.

In today’s fast-paced work environment, a law library’s ability to thrive depends on the capacity of its staff to be creative and nimble thinkers. When change becomes a driving operational constant, the role that idea-generation plays in strategic planning assumes heightened importance. Busy library managers don’t have the luxury of waiting for a bright idea to fall from the sky. Managers who recognize the importance of idea-generation and nurture their employees’ ability to spot the core of an innovative idea will position their institutions for a successful future. This program will outline a variety of methods managers can use to identify, evaluate and encourage bright ideas, including the use of an “idea-assessment tool.” The speakers will also focus on designing strategies to communicate “sticky” ideas that will be remembered and have a lasting impact.

I-2 Got Ideas? Tools and Techniques to Identify, Refine and Communicate Ideas That Stick!

Level: Advanced  WCC-Room 146 C  60 Minutes
Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: Library directors, managers and professors/educators

Scientists warn us that accelerated human-caused climate change is having devastating effects on our planet and advocate that we reduce greenhouse gas emissions world-wide by at least 80 percent by the year 2050. This program will present practical tips on how to work toward this goal by providing proven advice on starting a green office group, determining your library’s and/or parent organization’s climate impact, and prioritizing your climate initiatives. Specific topics will include: tools to measure your organization’s current greenhouse gas emissions; how transportation, waste management and lighting can be modified for a positive impact; how to initiate a zero waste program; and how carbon offsets and renewable energy credits can be part of your organization’s green plan.

I-5 What the Early Congresses Did Not Publish and How It Affects Historical Research
Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 151 AB  60 Minutes
Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Librarians who are searching for materials from early Congresses
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will learn what types of earlier Congressional materials have not been published.
2) Participants will learn why this creates an important gap in historical research and alternative sources for early Congressional publication.
Panelists will describe the incomplete publishing scheme of early Congressional materials, including omissions from the American State Papers, the compromises and conflicts in the Federalist era that affected publication, unpublished petitions, and documents printed for the first federal Congress, and how it affects historical research.

I-4 The 80/2050 Challenge: What You Can Do to Reduce Your Organization’s Impact on Climate Change
Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 150 AB  60 Minutes
Competency: Library Management
Target Audience: Librarians who are interested in strategies that will reduce their organization’s impact on climate change
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify the activities and systems at their libraries/organizations that significantly impact climate change.
2) Participants will be able to plan initiatives to reduce their library’s/organization’s impact on climate change.
I-6 HOT TOPIC: The New Economic Reality: Opportunity or Catastrophe?

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 152 AB
60 Minutes

Target Audience: All librarians and vendors

Learning Outcomes:

1) Librarians will utilize the predictions for changes in the legal landscape to plan for budgeting, staffing and cost recovery.
2) Librarians will analyze the interrelationships between law firm, law schools and vendors, and create new methods of working together.

This program will identify the challenges facing different segments of the legal community in the current economic crisis. Panelists will examine how the difficulties realized at their individual organizations are related to each other and predict changes to the legal landscape through a series of focused questions and answers. As of May 8, 2009, there were 3,741 lawyers and 5,851 staff—including librarians—laid off from major U.S. law firms. Firms have deferred start dates for new associates. Bonuses and salaries have been cut or frozen. Summer associate classes are smaller and programs shorter. Law schools are scrambling to find employment for recent graduates and alum left jobless. Clients are challenging the use of the billable hour and classifying Lexis and Westlaw as overhead. No stratum of the legal community is unaffected.

Panelists:
- Caren Biberman, Co-coordinator, Cahill Gordon & Reindel LLP
- June Berger, Co-coordinator, Stroock & Stroock & Lavan, LLP
- Christina Rattiner, Co-coordinator, Herrick, Feinstein LLP
- Elaine M. Egan, Moderator, Mayer Brown LLP

J-2 Embracing the M-word: Why and How to Market Your Library

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 146 C
45 Minutes

Competency: Core Competencies for Law Librarianship

Target Audience: Librarians who are interested in reaching current or potential users with new or traditional marketing strategies

Learning Outcomes:

1) Participants will be able to assess the risks involved in marketing, or not marketing, their libraries.
2) Participants will receive at least 10 concrete examples of effective marketing/outreach programs.

“We’re the Library; people know what we can do for them.” Ummm...usually not until we tell them. Telling people what you can do for them is vital to keeping the library as an integral part of your organization and community. But how to do it? The first part of this program looks at the roadblocks to marketing, and the risk that one law librarian took to reach potential users. The second half of the program features a poster session by fellow librarians. They’ll explain how they used low tech, high tech, and methods in between to successfully introduce current users to new products, and to win new users from the ranks of the highly suspicious, the geographically dispersed, and the just plain unaware.

Panelists:
- Carol Ottolenghi, Coordinator, Ohio Attorney General-Library

J-1 “Digging” Legal History: Using Exhumation and Innovative Forensic Science Techniques to Verify Historical Legal Events

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 145 AB
45 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Legal historians, special collections librarians, reference librarians, other professionals who are interested in applying forensic science techniques to historical legal issues

Learning Outcomes:

1) Participants will be able to explain how exhumation and modern forensic science techniques are used to revisit historical legal cases to confirm or correct existing records of the events.
2) Participants will be able to discuss the forensic science techniques applied to the reinvestigation of several celebrated cases.

Forensic science, the application of science to the law, is a vital tool for determining the likely scenario of a past event. Physical evidence, such as bones, hair or body fluids, obtained during exhumation, can provide the forensic scientist with adequate proof to postulate with a high degree of accuracy the sequence of occurrences associated with a past event, such as an unusual death or suspected murder. Professor James Starrs, a leading expert on the use of forensics in the courtroom, will examine how modern forensic science techniques, unavailable or unutilized at the time of the events in question, can alter or confirm recorded legal history. Starrs will illustrate his presentation with examples from some of the many re-investigations of cases he has handled involving exhumation of historical figures, including Louisiana Senator Huey Long’s alleged assassin, Dr. Carl Weiss, and CIA scientist Frank Olson, whose mysterious 1953 death was characterized by the U.S. government as a suicide.

Panelists:
- Jennie C. Meade, Coordinator and Moderator, George Washington University, Jacob Burns Law Library
- James E. Starrs, George Washington University Law School
Building a Coalition of County Law Libraries: A Place to Begin

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 150 AB
45 Minutes

Competency: Library Management

Target Audience: Librarians who depend on county law libraries for resources

Learning Outcomes:
1. Participants will be able to list three main steps toward creating a statewide county law library organization.
2. Participants will be able to develop consensus within the statewide organization to plan their advocacy.

Law libraries of all sizes face challenges when it comes to space, funding and resource management. Public county law libraries face particular scrutiny from legislative bodies seeking to restrict or control how they are funded and structured. Building a coalition to fight off damaging legislation is a valuable tool. Angela Baldree, head of the Ohio Coalition of County Law Libraries, will speak to its creation, organization and purpose in changing the political landscape in Ohio. Mary Jenkins will speak to the future outlook of county law libraries. Whether you are in a law firm that depends on the historical resources in your local county law library, or in an academic library that coordinates services to the public, you will want to be a part of this discussion.

Advocating for Authentication of and Permanent Public Access to Electronic Government Legal Information

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 151 AB
45 Minutes

Competency: Information Technology

Target Audience: Law librarians who are interested in the access to and reliability of online legal information

Learning Outcomes:
1. Participants will be able to explain to decision makers the need for authenticated electronic information.
2. Participants will be able to explain to decision makers the need for permanent access to electronic information.

Among the findings of the State-by-State Report on Authentication of Online Legal Resources were: No state’s online primary legal resources are authenticated or afford ready authentication by standard methods, and only eight states have provided for permanent public access (PPA) to one or more of their online primary legal resources. These findings establish a critical need for action. A number of government agencies have begun to address these issues at a federal level. These agencies’ procedures can provide a model for law librarians.

Panelists:
- Emily Feldman, Coordinator, AALL Government Relations Office
- Camilla Tubbs, Moderator, Yale Law School, Lillian Goldman Library
- Michael W. Carroll, American University, Washington College of Law
- Alan D. Sugarman, HyperLaw.com
can use to present a case in their home states to ensure that the information state governments make available electronically is in an authenticated format and is permanently preserved. Participants will be provided with information to be able to answer the questions: “What is it?” “Why do we need it?” and “How do we do it?”

J-6 Law Libraries and the Federal Depository Library Program—How Can This Marriage Be Saved?

Level: Intermediate
WCC-Room 147 AB
45 Minutes

Competency: Library Management

Target Audience: Directors, government documents librarians, and reference librarians in academic libraries with federal depository status; law librarians in other settings who rely on the resources of depository libraries or refer patrons to them

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to assess the pros and cons of depository status for law libraries.
2) Participants will be prepared to identify possible incentives for continued participation in the Federal Depository Library Program by law libraries.

Thirty years have passed since Public Law 95-261 enabled law school libraries to become selective depositories. As a primarily print depository program has changed to a nearly all-digital one, has this long-time partnership survived the transition? Or has a once mutually beneficial relationship come to the point of irreconcilable differences? What is the value of depository status when federal government web sites are accessible anywhere, by anyone? What incentives do academic law libraries have for continued participation? Do law librarians have a pro bono role in helping public users find and use legal and governmental information? Addressing these questions will be a director and a government documents librarian from law school libraries with depository status and a government printing office official. That will be followed by a moderated discussion, with audience participation, about possible innovations for the future.

K-1 Vlogging for Law Libraries

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 145 AB
30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Law librarians and the information technology staff who support them

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify three practical reasons for creating a vlog for their library.
2) Participants will be able to utilize free and open source editing software and network platforms to create and share vlogging projects.

Video has long been identified as an effective medium for adult instruction. Until recently, the ability to harness the power of the moving image in libraries involved resources—such as expensive hardware, bandwidth and significant technical know-how—not readily available to most librarians. Current technology has knocked down those barriers! This program will introduce law librarians and IT professionals to the world of vlogs by using the experiences of one law library’s initiative as a case study. This presentation will highlight effective uses for library vlogs, the tools needed to create one and the digital issues that a new vlogger is likely to face.

With an emphasis on free and open source software and hosting platforms, the panelist will demonstrate how to create a vlog, edit a video clip and share it with your audience at little or no cost.

K-2 Find 50-State Law Surveys Fast!

Level: Introductory
WCC-Room 146 C
30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Librarians who answer reference and research requests

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will learn how to find state laws on many subjects and the proper search terms to use in order to produce relevant results quickly.
2) Participants will learn about the availability of continuing education grants from AALL/BNA.

Cheryl Nyberg, author of the renowned Subject Compilation of State Laws 2006–2007 (An Annotated Bibliography), will take participants on a tour of sites and sources most likely to yield a state law table on virtually any subject. The “usual subjects” will be identified and rounded up, and participants will learn “secret” search terms that produce highly relevant Internet sources. April Schwartz will briefly describe the availability of continuing professional education grants provided by AALL/BNA, which helped fund Nyberg’s presentation at a Dallas Association of Law Libraries conference in 2007, portions of which are being reprised at AALL, Washington, D.C.

K-3 Researching International Tax Law

Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 147 AB  30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Firm or academic law librarians who are interested in learning about international tax law.

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify the sources of international tax law.
2) Participants will be able to locate information in print materials and online databases.

International Tax Law has developed into an important area of the legal field due to the increased emphasis on international trade. It is essentially made up of model tax conventions and bilateral tax treaties between various nations. These tax treaties usually seek to accomplish two things: 1) prevent “double taxation,” where taxpayers are taxed by both their home country and the foreign country in which they currently reside, and 2) prevent abuse, such as hiding assets offshore for the avoidance of paying taxes. Law librarians, especially those employed at law firms, who specialize in international law or tax law, will need to be knowledgeable in researching this growing area of law. Attendees will learn about the different model conventions and treaties, as well as the sources (both print and online) that contain them.

K-4 Where on Earth? GIS Applications in Law

Level: Introductory  WCC-Room 150 AB  30 Minutes

Competency: Information Technology

Target Audience: Librarians who are interested in an emerging technology that will have a place in legal research.

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will better understand how Geographic Information Systems (GISs) can assist with certain kinds of research.
2) Participants will be able to name some common GIS packages, as well as their strengths and weaknesses.

Ever wonder which states are historically more likely to vote against gun control or abortion? Ever wonder if there’s a correlation between the median wage of a county and the way it votes? A GIS is one means of answering these questions. GISs connect data to maps in order to perform spatial analysis and to present data in a clear, compelling manner. GISs are used in a wide range of fields: epidemiologists use them to track the outbreak of disease, urban planners use them to site new homes, and biologists use them to find suitable new habitats for a species. Their use in law is growing, and this presentation aims to provide a basic background in GISs with relevant examples.

K-5 Law Librarian: The New Private Investigator

Level: Advanced  WCC-Room 151 AB  30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Private law librarians

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to identify commercial and free databases to locate information about individuals.
2) Participants will learn how to implement the tips, ideas and methods for investigative research.

With a couple of bucks, you will be surprised what information can be uncovered about an individual. Thanks to the proliferation of both free and commercial databases, locating this type of information has never been easier. Whether it is finding a person’s current address and/or phone number or pinpointing any assets they may own, this session will teach you a new skill or enhance your present investigator skills. It will also teach you the pitfalls of these sources. This exciting presentation will unfold into three parts: people finder databases, public records and criminal information.

K-6 What We Learned from Our SAILS: Using Law Students as Human Subjects and Measuring Law Student Information Literacy

Level: Intermediate  WCC-Room 152 AB  30 Minutes

Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services

Target Audience: Academic law librarians and academic law library administrators; instructional law librarians; law librarians who are interested in human-subjects research.

Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will better understand the critical role that Institutional Review Boards (IRBs) play in approving original research on law library patrons, and will be able to use this understanding toward crafting proposals that withstand IRB scrutiny.
2) Participants will learn the fundamentals of assessment theory, including an overview of both Classical Test Theory and Item-Response Theory, in order to understand how these theories drive Information Literacy (IL) assessment.

Information Literacy (IL) is not merely the current paradigm for analyzing bibliographic instruction, it also has the potential to provide much-needed data for persuading law school administrators to focus resources onto research instruction. Expanding upon their 15-minute ALL-SIS-sponsored educational program at the 101st Annual Meeting of AALL, Dennis Kim-Prieto and Molly Brownfield will discuss their experiences with IRB review, present concepts fundamental to standardized assessment, and examine detailed findings from their administration of ACRL’s Project SAILS, a standardized measure of IL, to Rutgers Law Students. Brownfield and Kim-Prieto will also present the results from their post-SAILS survey measuring law students’ attitudes toward and perception of legal research in general, and their skills in particular. This program will close with a summary of the work already accomplished toward commissioning an AALL Committee on Law Student Information Literacy.

Target Audience: Computing services librarians, reference librarians, technical services librarians and library management
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will plan, design and create RSS feeds, widgets, SIMILE applications and social network sites for use in any library.
2) Participants will identify strategies that will help them avoid common problems encountered by technologists when implementing Web 2.0 technologies in libraries.

In this intensive, one-day, hands-on workshop, participants will plan, design and create Web 2.0 solutions for legal research instruction and the management of law library services. A team of experienced library technologists will lead the group in the discussion and implementation of common library 2.0 applications. Participants will identify, compare and critique technologies such as wikis, blogs, social networks, widgets, weblog extensions, collaboration software, AJAX, RSS, APIs and virtual worlds. W-2: Conducting Empirical Legal Research
Saturday, July 25 • 8:30 a.m. − 5:00 p.m. (8:00 a.m. check-in)
OFFSITE-American University
Washington College of Law  Full day
Level: Intermediate  Competency: Reference, Research and Patron Services
Target Audience: Librarians interested in learning about empirical research
Learning Outcomes:
1) Participants will be able to describe what empirical research is and the resources and methods used by faculty, lawyers and students.
2) Participants will learn how to use statistical software to run basic, descriptive statistics (e.g., means, standard deviations) and where to locate analyzable databases that meet the needs of their faculty, lawyers and students.

Empirical legal research uses data analysis grounded in social science to study the law and its impact on society. In recent years, empirical legal studies have rapidly emerged as an essential component of legal research and scholarship. Law librarians can be instrumental in helping empirical legal researchers with this type of scholarship, but it often involves understanding the complexities of data sets and data manipulation.

The goal of this workshop is to provide practical, hands-on knowledge to law librarians who are trying to assist with the research process for empirical legal studies. Though of particular interest to academic law librarians in reference and faculty services who work with empirical legal scholars, this workshop can also be instrumental to law firm librarians assisting attorneys with briefs or trial strategy, as well as government law librarians who encounter empirical legal research in their work.

Participants need no background or knowledge of statistics to enroll in the workshop. Through both a lecture format and hands-on computer work, workshop participants will acquire a broad understanding of empirical legal research and will receive an introduction to manipulation of data using Stata statistical software. Temporary licenses for Stata software will be provided to participants.

What are the new opportunities for libraries to establish their value to the law school? What are the options for developing nontraditional print and electronic collections for true shared collection development? What are the necessary staff skills? How can staff be reallocated to meet new needs? Working with facilitators, participants will contribute their individual and institutional perspectives and explore possible scenarios collectively in highly interactive breakout sessions. The participants will “think outside the box” to identify possible futures, as well as the action steps to achieve them.

Diversity Symposium
Rethinking Diversity: Defining Ourselves for the 21st Century
Renaissance Washington, D.C., Hotel – Room 4
Saturday, July 25 • 3:30 p.m. – 5:00 p.m.
sponsored by LexisNexis
Raquel Gabriel, Chair, Committee on Diversity
Reception immediately following (5:00 p.m. – 6:00 p.m.) in Room 3

In an increasingly multicultural society, how do we define “diversity”? Should it be based on race? Sexual orientation? Age? Culture? What pictures come to your mind when you think of diversity in the United States? Do those ideas change when you think about your professional career as a law librarian? Do you have any idea of how to reach out to learn more about the topic of diversity within the profession or within AALL? Join panelists from the Asian American Law Librarians Caucus, the Black Caucus of the American Association of Law Libraries, the Standing Committee on Gay and Lesbian Issues, the Gen X/Gen Y Caucus, the Latino Caucus and the Native Peoples Law Caucus to learn more about the diversity that is within AALL and the ideas and goals of each caucus/committee. Engage with our speakers and panelists in a discussion on what diversity is, how each group defines it, and whether there are common goals or strategies we can agree upon as a way to innovate the ideal of diversity within AALL and start the discussion as to whether commitment to diversity is critical to the profession in the new century.

You’re known by many titles ...

Librarian
Information Professional
Exalted Knower of All Things Knowable
(Yeah, we kind of like that one too)

But none of them reflect the true value of what you mean to your organization.

It’s our privilege to work closely with you. We’ve seen firsthand the incredible depth and breadth of what you do. In fact, you and your ideas have helped shape LexisNexis as much as anyone over the past 30 years.

For this, thank you. And as always, we are proud to be at your service.
