Both Law Library Journal and AALL Spectrum have new editors this year. The publications ran smoothly, and neither editor requested assistance from the committee this year.

Due to a lack of agenda items, the committee did not meet in Chicago in fall 2007. The committee met during the AALL Annual Meeting in July 2007 and will meet again in July 2008. A reception for the authors of both publications was held at the 2007 Annual Meeting, and another will be held this July. CCH sponsored both receptions. Article of the Year awards were given out during the reception last year and will again this year.

Two subcommittees were appointed: one to nominate articles for the Law Library Journal article of the year and another to nominate articles for the AALL Spectrum article of the year. Recommendations were forwarded to the Awards Committee. A third subcommittee created a new Web site for the committee, which will be unveiled this summer.

A small subcommittee was appointed to help the Law Library Journal editor select new editors for the “Keeping Up with New Legal Titles” section of the journal. The new editors should be announced soon.
