President’s Message
Carol Schmitt, Boardman Law Firm LLP

Hello everyone!

June 1 rang in the start of a new LLAW membership year and my inauguration as LLAW President. I am honored to be serving as your president. (I am still reeling from the thrill of my landslide victory …)

June also kicks off the countdown to the AALL Annual Conference whose theme is "Rise to the Challenge."

LLAW got an early start "rising to the challenge" when the membership approved changes to the Bylaws and Procedure Manual on membership areas of committees and dues. The changes that were recommended, presented and approved truly do reflect the very nature and makeup of the membership at large. Thank you to you, the members, for accepting the challenge!

The second challenge that LLAW will "rise to" is the proposal and approval of the first increase in LLAW membership dues in over 20 years. While the change will not take place until the 2008-2009 membership year, the notice of the increase needs to be announced to the LLAW membership at large during the 2007-2008 membership year. Please watch for notices of this important change.

Finally, I hope that each of you, as individual members will "rise to the challenge" by 1) continuing or beginning to write articles, 2) participating in programs, 3) serving on committees and perhaps, consider serving as an officer or member of the executive board in future years.

I myself will "rise to the challenge" both professionally and personally. Professionally, I will be attending my first (yes, my FIRST) AALL conference. I am looking forward to attending several very interesting sessions, on topics that I never seem to have time to learn about. I am not too sure if New Orleans in July and I are a good match or not, but I am embracing the challenge! I am hoping to come away from the conference with many great ideas, inspirations, names, and probably more than my share of conference schwag! Personally,

I see this conference as a way for me to "challenge myself" to prove that I can make it through airports by myself. (Oh and my final challenge to myself, is to have a more current professional picture taken! I know my future as LLAW president is bright, but ….)

I look forward to this great adventure that I am undertaking. Those that have served before me have paved my path to the challenge. I would be remiss if I did not extend a deep and heartfelt "THANK YOU" to Diane Duffey and all the members of the executive board. I have the pleasure of working with several new faces on the LLAW Executive Board, as well as some familiar faces. I am very proud to serve with each and every one of these fine individuals. They truly represent the very essence and being of LLAW.

1. Library Elf - www.libraryelf.com

   Do you ever have trouble keeping your personal library records organized? In my house, we have several people with library cards, and we may check out 50 to 60 books at a time, not to mention how many items are on hold, due back, or (dread) overdue. LibraryElf provides the organizational solution! Assuming your library participates (Milwaukee County Federated Library System and the Madison Public Library both participate), all you need to do is create an account (very easy), including your library card numbers, usernames and passwords, and LibraryElf does the rest. LibraryElf sends an email to you at intervals that you set up (e.g. three days before books are due). It organizes the information into categories, such as overdues, what’s due soon, material ready to be picked up, everything else you have out on your cards, etc. It also gives a nice summary by card of current activity. Understandably, there are those who may be concerned over privacy and retention issues, but LibraryElf promises to not keep historical information. Overall, it is a wonderful tool to managing those ever-blossoming library records.

   “Law.com Quest aims to bring legal professionals relevant results from across the Law.com Network and the legal web.” This specialized engine searches reliable and recognizable sources including National Law Journal, Corporate Counsel, several law firms and legal blogs. And, that is just the beginning! Great search results are coupled with an "added value" found on the left side of the screen. QUEST allows you to limit by date, source, or “type.” Narrow the search by articles, decisions, case summaries, blogs, etc.

3. Financial Data Finder - http://fisher.osu.edu/fin/osudata.htm

   Sponsored by the Department of Finance at Ohio State University, this is a “gateway” site. The searcher indicates the type of data sought and the FDF provides websites that will assist. The result list includes a link along with a brief description of the information found at that location. Topics for searching include: banks, accounting, risk management, venture capital and many more.

Please send me an email with any Web sites that you have stumbled upon that have become a “favorite.” Just send the site and brief description. We are always looking for authoritative sites for personal and professional use. Send your suggestions to bbutula@dkattorneys.com

Then the board will vote on signing the letter, via email. NOTE: 5/10/07 the decision was made by the LLAW executive vote to sign a letter in support of SB 849.

- Making members have some ownership (what do they want)

b. VIP Program @ AALL Annual Meeting
Diane reported that Carol Bannen is still trying to finalize plans for the Chapter VIP Program with LLAW and Joyce Hasting, editor at the State Bar of Wisconsin.

VII. New Business
a. Membership Dues Increase
The decision was made to present a motion to the membership that the LLAW dues be increased effective June 1, 2008. After much discussion it was agreed that the proposed dues increase will be:
Active: increasing from $20 to $25
Associate: increase from $10 to $12.50
Student: increase from $10 to $12.50
Sustaining: increase from $60 to $75.00
Carol will send out a notice to the general membership 60 days prior to the first general membership meeting slated for September, so that the motion can be discussed and voted on at that meeting.

NOTE: The new bylaws language reads as: The dues year is June 1 to May 31 of the following year. Dues are payable on June 1 of each year. Sustaining members shall pay dues at three times the rate of the individual membership dues. Associate members and student members shall pay dues at one-half the cost of the individual membership dues. These dues are non-refundable.

b. AALL: New Orleans Book Drive
Diane reported that Social Responsibilities SIS has chosen the Recovery District Schools in New Orleans as the recipient of this year's book drive proceeds.
It was decided that this would not be something that the LLAW board would participate in, but individuals could and were encouraged to participate.

VIII. Other Announcements
Diane thanked all the board members for a great year.

IX. Adjournment
The meeting adjourned at 7:41 p.m.
The author adapts Garrett Hardin's concept of the commons to the activities of creation and invention, and presents the problem of distributive justice as it applies to distributions among creators, consumers, and generations.

The author examines sections of the USA PATRIOT Act and its amendments that are especially relevant to libraries, and concludes that Congress listened to librarians’ concerns and made changes that allow constitutional rights to co-exist with law enforcement needs.

People pose specific legal questions in online discussion forums and other people, including lawyers, answer them. This article compares the use of this new method of providing legal advice in nineteen countries worldwide.

The EU Directive on Copyright introduced a definition of communication to the public right, a definition of reproduction right, a list of exceptions or limitations to the reproduction right, and various technological measures. This article compares the Directive to US copyright law.

The Note explores how recent judicial decisions have introduced a broader definition of transformative use, and an increasing willingness by courts to accept secondary uses as fair, despite their impact on a copyright holder’s potential market.

The authors suggest that private librarians work to achieve full alignment with their parent organizations by becoming “thought leaders” and by measuring their contributions in language their bosses understand. They recommend SLA’s Competencies for Information Professionals and the Balanced Scorecard concept as two useful tools to help stabilize the library’s future.

Meadows, Judy and Todd, Kay. “Searching for Legal Articles.” Perspectives: Teaching Legal Research and Writing 15:146-149 (winter 2007)

This column reports on law librarians’ thoughts on searching for legal articles, including: the use of print indexes; the preferred print indexes if used; the virtues and drawbacks of online free text searching; and the use of search engines such as Google for finding free sources of articles.

This Note analyzes the effects of fair use on the incentives to create copyrighted works and on the incentives to invest in technologies that affect those works, such as video players and Google Book Search. It suggests a new rationale for the fair use exception: maintaining incentives to invest in new technologies that create new markets for copyrighted works.

This article analyzes the balance between a computer software creator's rights and the public good that results from access to computer software source code.

This article proposes that instead of lobbying Congress for copyright term extensions, copyright owners should maximize the potential of their copyright privileges by pursuing the option of asset-backed securitization.

Digital Rights Management technologies control usage of copyrighted digital material. But these technologies and their associated anticircumvention regulations often override a freedom that is recognized by copyright law under print technologies. This article suggests improvement in the law that could provide a solution to this problem.

This Note discusses the development of intellectual property law as it pertains to the Internet and how that law has been applied to aggregators, explains the varying approaches developed by the courts to evaluate fair use on the Internet, and endorses the Third Circuit’s approach.

Conflicts between copyright holders and those who categorize their content have complicated the understanding of fair use. The author proposes adjusting copyright doctrine to empower categorizers to continue their work navigating today’s sea of information.

The author predicts that there might well be only a very small number of books on the shelves of law libraries in another five years, and suggests ways that law libraries can make the “leap” to digital.

The author argues that Italy currently lacks an adequate online legal information system because of insufficient cooperation between public and private providers.

Here are some practical tips on how to use voice mail more effectively.
Librarians who want to digitize titles from their collections usually need to know whether the works they’re scanning are, in fact, still under copyright. Stanford University’s Copyright Renewal Database is an online repository that aims to make it easier to identify orphan works, books that have exhausted their commercial life spans and have no apparent owners.

In 2003 every unpublished work ever created by any author who died before 1933 entered the public domain, including all letters, journals, poems, stories, songs, sketches, photos, and paintings that had never been publicly distributed. This article explores the creation and implications of this new public domain of unpublished works.

This Note provides background on the lawsuits filed against Google by the Authors Guild and the Association of American Publishers. It provides a fair use analysis in light of two 2003 court decisions, proposes a resolution of the disputes, and addresses the difficult decisions courts must make in the face of rapidly evolving technology.

This Comment suggests a method of fair use analysis that will preserve the benefits of web search engines and categorizers.

Entries are arranged alphabetically within three format categories: books, symposia, and articles or essays.

Taylor, Amy M. “Empirical Legal Studies, or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Data.” Legal Information Alert 26(2):1, 4, 15 (February 2007)

Empirical Legal Studies (ELS) uses data analysis to study the legal system. This article introduces ELS and provides an annotated list of data sets and statistical sources to acquaint beginners with the range and complexity of available resources.

This paper is based on a lecture at Columbia Law School by Nick Taylor, Authors Guild president from 2002-2006. During his tenure, the Guild sued Google, charging massive copyright violations in its library scanning program, Google Book Search. The case is so far undecided.

This article argues that the legal challenges to Google's plans to digitize millions of copyrighted books from university libraries are likely to succeed, thus hampering other, potentially more valuable public indexes and digitization processes.

This article suggests making the concept of “public domain” a principle rather than a rule, and that this change could make the underlying interest in access to information more legally relevant.

This Note argues that Google’s inclusion of copyrighted works in Google Book Search is not copyright infringement, but rather is fair use, mainly because of the transformative character and non-superseding use of the copyright-protected material.

Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 32.1 made all unpublished opinions issued after January 1, 2007, citable in all appeals courts. This Note addresses the potential consequences of the rule, and considers possible solutions.

This article argues that copyright law must confront the issue of preservation of the past. It explores the barriers to digital archiving in current law, including those that affect the Google Library project, and explores possible solutions.

LLAW’s own Jenny Zook provides a humorous look at her personal journey from a private law firm library in Chicago to a public academic law library reference position at the University of Wisconsin.

Archives Committee Report
2006-2007

The general contents of the nine boxes of Archives materials were documented, thanks to Northwestern Mutual staff. The boxes needed to be moved out of their storage space at Northwestern Mutual’s library, due to a lack of space. Thanks to Bev Butula and Diane Duffey for arranging the logistics of that move. The archive boxes are temporarily being housed with Bev Butula, until more permanent plans are made. The committee’s next task is to assess the contents of the boxes, and determine whether they can be weeded and/or converted to digital storage.

Government Relations Committee Annual Report
2006-2007

For FY 2007, the Government Printing Office had requested a supplemental $10 million, most of which had been approved by both the House and Senate, with $2 million earmarked for the production and distribution of the 2006 U.S. Code.

President Bush's proposed 2007 budget included $2.5 million in cuts to the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) library system. This meant a $150,000 cut in federal funding for each of the regional libraries. In Feb. 2006, AALL, ALA and SLA submitted a letter for a House Appropriations Subcommittee hearing on EPA's FY 2007 budget opposing the cuts but were unable to get any support from any House members at that time.

As of Jan. 1, 2007, the EPA's headquarters library in Washington has been closed to the public, and regional libraries in Chicago, Dallas and Kansas City have been shut down. Cuts to hours and services have occurred at the Boston, New York, San Francisco and Seattle regional libraries.

Representatives Dingell, Waxman, and Bart Gordon asked the Government Accountability Office to start an inquiry.

into the closings, and also requested that the EPA administrator, Stephen Johnson, cease the destruction of library materials immediately.

On Aug. 2, 2006, Sen. Christopher Bond (R-MO) introduced S. 3774, a bill To amend title 18, United States Code, to prohibit the unauthorized disclosure of classified information. Endorsed by eleven other senators, it would criminalize the unauthorized disclosure of classified information. Bond's bill would give the executive branch broad discretion to prosecute individuals engaged in disclosure of government secrets because it allows for the prosecution of individuals without proving that a disclosure poses a threat to national security. AALL believes that government transparency and accountability are vital to a democratic society and that Bond’s legislation is an ill-advised, draconian measure.

S. 3774 uses the same language (see bill text at http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/getdoc.cgi?dbname=109_cong_bills&docid=f:s3774is.txt.pdf) as the highly controversial legislation vetoed by President Clinton late in 2000. To date, Congress has refused to pass legislation that would make it a crime for any person to willfully disclose, for any purpose whatsoever, information classified as secret or top secret.

The primary concern with S. 3774 is that it would be an attack on the First Amendment rights of the press, whistleblowers, and others whose intention it is to monitor government actions and ensure that the government does not abuse or overstep its authority. The legislation would severely inhibit the ability of individuals to serve as a legitimate check on the executive branch.

The bill has been referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee and every member of the committee needs to hear from his or her constituents. No action has been taken as of 2/5/07.

AALL Action Alert
Protect Open Government and the First Amendment—Urge Senators to Oppose “The Official Secrets Act”
BACKGROUND

S. 3774, a bill To amend title 18, United States Code, to prohibit the unauthorized disclosure of classified information, was introduced by Sen. Christopher Bond (R-MO) on August 2, 2006. Endorsed by eleven other senators, it would criminalize the unauthorized disclosure of classified information. Bond's bill would give the executive branch broad discretion to prosecute individuals engaged in disclosure of government secrets because it allows for the prosecution of individuals without proving that a disclosure poses a threat to national security. We believe that government transparency and accountability are vital to a democratic society and that Bond’s legislation is an ill-advised, draconian measure.

S. 3774 uses the same language as the highly controversial legislation vetoed by President Clinton late in 2000. To date, Congress has refused to pass legislation that would make it a crime for any person to willfully disclose, for any purpose whatsoever, information classified as secret or top secret.

The primary concern with S. 3774 is that it would be an attack on the First Amendment rights of the press, whistleblowers, and others whose intention it is to monitor government actions and ensure that the government does not abuse or overstep its authority. The legislation would severely inhibit the ability of individuals to serve as a legitimate check on the executive branch.

ACTION NEEDED

The Senate is currently on its August recess, which runs through Labor Day. S. 3774 could be quickly pushed through as an attachment to other legislation when the Senate reconvenes in September. The bill has been referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee and every member of the committee needs to hear from his or her constituents. If your Senator is listed below as a member of the committee, please call or send an email urging them to oppose this legislation and protect the First Amendment. You can reach your Senator through the U.S. Capitol Switchboard at: 202-224-3121, or via email at http://www.senate.gov/general/contact_information/senators_cfm.cfm. Below are talking points to use in your correspondences.

It is our strong belief that the public has a right to know important information pertaining to government actions, particularly when that information is used as a check on the executive branch.

S. 3774 challenges the First Amendment rights of all Americans. Open government and access to government information are important to our democracy, and the press serves as a vital mechanism for reporting certain types of government information that the public otherwise would not have access to.

S. 3774 creates a new federal felony crime which is subject to fines and up to three years imprisonment for making an unauthorized disclosure of any information if there is “reason to believe” the information has been properly classified. This suppresses the media and their ability to keep the public informed.

In 2004, Wisconsin Library Association (WLA) invited several library-related groups, including LLAW, to submit their top legislative priorities for inclusion as a WLA legislative agenda item. Below is the statement that WLA received from LLAW and the WLA State Legislative Agenda For the 2007-09 Biennium.
Information provided by the Law Librarians of Wisconsin
(available at http://www.wla.lib.wi.us/legis/lawlibraries.htm)

In the State of Wisconsin, there are two law libraries that are open to the public and supported as part of the State's budget: the University of Wisconsin-Madison Law Library and the Wisconsin State Law Library. In addition, the Wisconsin State Law Library manages through contractual arrangements two additional public law libraries, the Dane County Legal Resource Center and the Milwaukee Legal Resource Center. These two law libraries are the only staffed county law libraries in Wisconsin. These smaller branches receive funding directly from Dane and Milwaukee Counties, respectively, and have had funding severely cut or completely eliminated in recent years.

Now, more than ever, the public is looking for places to go to find accurate legal information and access to court procedures. If the public county law libraries are being eliminated or struggling to survive, there will be an additional strain on the resources of the other public law libraries, the UW-Madison Law Library and the Wisconsin State Law Library. For that reason, we encourage support of funding for these two public law libraries, as well as the state agency libraries that offer legal resources and assistance, and support for their services.

Public access to legal information should be a priority for our State. More and more people are going to court without the assistance of an attorney, often because they cannot afford a lawyer. Many times the same people who cannot afford an attorney do not have ready-access to the Internet. Many legal resources are not available in electronic format or are prohibitive in cost to access for most public users. The public relies on the access and assistance public law libraries provide. These services need to be made a priority in this challenging economic climate.

Law librarians recognize that as more self-represented users demand access to legal resources, they are also in the position to ask for additional assistance with legal documents, forms, and procedures. Law librarians walk a fine line between offering legal information and the prohibited legal advice or unauthorized practice of law. This is especially true in the county public law libraries that are located in courthouses. To enhance the assistance public law libraries offer users, they have aligned themselves with the local bar associations, community agencies, state agencies, and court offices to offer additional services beyond traditional library services. Through this type of extended collaboration, law libraries can offer services or resources beyond what a limited budget can provide. These and other opportunities for collaboration and creativity should be a priority and supported in the upcoming budget.

WLA State Legislative Agenda For the 2007-09 Biennium
(available at http://www.wla.lib.wi.us/legis/priorities.htm)

The Wisconsin Library Association (WLA) was established in 1891 to bring together and support people from all types of libraries to advocate and work for the improvement and development of library and information services for all of Wisconsin. WLA members include nearly 2,000 librarians, libraries, library trustees, and friends representing all types of libraries in Wisconsin. All of these interests share a common purpose - to improve and promote library and information services for the people of Wisconsin.

Legislative Priorities for 2007 Legislative Action

Increase state funding for public library system aids to 13% of local library expenditures, as specified in Wisconsin statutes.
Support full funding for BadgerLink.
Preserve the use of the Universal Service Fund for BadgerLink and other library services.
Increase funding necessary to support traditional service levels for state contracts:
Wisconsin Regional Library for the Blind & Physically Handicapped

Cooperative Children's Book Center
Wisconsin Library Services (WiLS) and
Milwaukee Public Library/Interlibrary Loan

Support increased funding of the University of Wisconsin System libraries.
Oppose the diversion of the Common School Fund for purposes other than the purchase of school library materials.
Support the need for libraries to have access to adequate bandwidth.
Support public library district enabling legislation.
Support the Wisconsin State Law Library and the Milwaukee County and Dane County Legal Resource libraries.
Oppose the so-called “65 percent solution” or other proposals of this type which mandate that a specific percentage of funding for educational institutions be spent on classroom instruction.
Support a measure which would allow public library boards to transfer bequests and other gifts to a related charitable foundation.
Support exemption of county library expenditures from any county levy limits.
Support access to government publications/documents.
Support full funding for the Wisconsin Historical Society Library.
Support the employment of at least one full-time certified school library media specialist in every school and additional library media specialists and certified instructional technology professionals in schools with more than 650 students. WLA supports legislative changes in Standard H to enable this.
Continue to promote the importance of publicly-funded free and open access to library materials to all.
Support continuation of maintenance of effort funding levels by local units of government as a requirement for public library system membership.

Legislative Policy Statements

The Wisconsin Library Association affirms:

That library services address essential informational, educational, cultural, and recreational needs for Wisconsin residents and merit strong legislative support.
That the state’s libraries, by providing lifelong learning opportunities, make a significant contribution to the quality of life for all Wisconsin residents.
That the state’s libraries through a statewide knowledge network provide essential information resources for the state’s economic development.
That the state’s libraries, through multiple cooperative arrangements, serve as models for regional and statewide cooperation.
That the state’s librarians provide Wisconsin residents with the essential information services they need to succeed at school, at work, and in their personal lives.
The Wisconsin Library Association supports state legislative policy that:

Ensures that all the people of Wisconsin have the broadest possible access to information resources and materials. Preserves the fundamental principle of publicly funded free and open access to library materials and services.

Ensures privacy in the use of library materials and services.
Strongly supports the development of collections and resources for libraries of all types.
Broadens the availability of communications technology for educational and information resources.
Promotes regional and statewide sharing of library and information resources.
Supports strong statewide leadership for library development and cooperation.
The Wisconsin Library Association opposes state legislative policy that:

Restricts access by the state’s residents to information resources and materials.
Affects local and state taxing options that could have an adverse affect on libraries, such as TABOR or the Taxpayer Protection Act.
Intrudes on the privacy of library users.
Interferes with the right of local public library boards to independently determine local library policy, staffing, and services based on community standards.

JOHN DOE LIBRARY GROUP GOES PUBLIC

The Connecticut library organization that was targeted by federal officials but prevented from revealing its identity has held a press conference concerning the matter. Last year, the Library Connection received a national security letter from the government demanding patron records. Authorized by the USA PATRIOT Act, the letters forbid recipients from even disclosing that they have received the letter. After months of wrangling over the matter, the Justice Department has ended its efforts to enforce the gag order. At the press conference, Peter Chase, vice president of Library Connection, said, "It was galling for me to see the government's attorney in Connecticut... travel around the state telling people that their library records were safe, while at the same time he was enforcing a gag order preventing me from telling people that their library records were not safe." The Library Connection continues to fight the demands of the letter and has not yet given the Justice Department any patron records.
