Introduction

In 2008, the Professional Development Committee (PDC) of the Art Libraries Society of North America undertook a project to update the 1995 publication Library Schools in the United States and Canada: Educational Opportunities for Careers in Fine Arts and Visual Resources Librarianship. Members of the PDC crafted a survey composed of a broad range of questions, aimed at helping prospective students determine the range and depth of course offerings and support services available to those interested in art librarianship, visual resources, and related careers. Information was solicited via an online survey of all Library Science programs that were accredited by the American Library Association as of January 2008. Responses were edited for uniformity, but no changes were made to the content submitted by the responding institutions.

At the time of the survey, there were 56 ALA-accredited library and information science programs in North America. The PDC received completed surveys from 39 programs. Concise program listings have been provided for those programs that did not complete the survey. "NR" indicates questions for which an institution provided no response.

This report is intended to provide useful information to those seeking a master's degree in library and information science with the goal of entering into art librarianship or visual resources as a career. Because changes may be made to an institution's course offerings, admission deadlines, etc., information should be confirmed with each individual school.

Updates or corrections should be submitted to the current chair of the Education Subcommittee of the Professional Development Committee, which may be found at:
<http://www.arlisna.org/organization/com/profdev/ed/index.html>

Program entry information

The full library and information science program entries presented here expand the fields of information from the 1995 Library Schools in the United States and Canada: Educational Opportunities for Careers in Fine Arts and Visual Resources Librarianship to include internships, campus resources, deadlines and financial assistance. The sections below are included in each full entry.

Programs Offered: Lists the major LIS programs and specializations.

Specialized Courses Offered: Lists specific courses in art and visual resources librarianship and how they are offered (evening, day, off-site, distance education)

Credit and Exemption: Details how credits will transfer from other departments and schools.

Internships: Lists the number and type of internships/practicums available.

Campus Resources: Lists cultural resources such as museums or galleries available to students.

Admission deadlines: Details Semester deadlines for application.

Financial Assistance: Lists the types of funding and assistance available and deadlines for application.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

Is financial aid available through the University? Yes

Please describe the types of financial assistance available.

The University offers several types of financial assistance. Please see <http://www.hawaii.edu/lis/students.php?page=finaid>

Please note any additional application procedures and/or requirements.

Please see our admissions website for details: <http://www.hawaii.edu/lis/program.php?page=admissions>
Scholarship information also available at: <http://www.hawaii.edu/lis/students.php?page=scholarships>

Please note any deadlines.

Application forms and accompanying documents must be sent to the program by April 1 for the fall semester, and November 1 for the spring. There is no summer admission but a student may start in the summer as an unclassified student if accepted for the fall. International applicants are urged to apply well before the deadlines owing to the complexity of foreign admissions processing.

Is additional funding available to students in the Library and/or Information Science program? Yes

Please describe the types of financial assistance available.

The program has a limited number of tuition waivers (TW) and Pacific Asian Scholarships (PAS) available for the fall and spring semesters. Both incoming and continuing students may apply. A TW waives your tuition for day program courses. Students whose GPA falls below the minimum will be required to forfeit their scholarships and pay for their tuition. TW and PAS recipients are still required to pay for housing, food, student fees, and other expenses connected with their education at UH. Students must be enrolled full time and are limited to receiving the equivalent of two full academic-year TWs.

Please note any additional application procedures and/or requirements.
