To the Members of the University Senate:

Your Committee on the Library begs leave to submit the following report for the past year.

For the fiscal year 1937-38, the Board of Trustees made appropriations of $139,773 for the increase of the University Library as follows: General Library, $114,773; Law, $13,000; Medicine and Dentistry, $11,000, and Pharmacy, $1000. The appropriation of $114,773 for the General Library in Urbana was assigned to the various schools, colleges, and departments, etc. by the Senate Library Committee. In addition to these book appropriations there was spent for books last year, out of Graduate School, departmental and other funds, $8,132.57 and most of these purchases were added to the Library, though some are kept in departmental offices.

A schedule of assignments for the purchase of books for the past two years follows. The individual assignments are often approximately repeated from year to year, though the amount for any one purpose or department has frequently been changed by the Committee when making the assignments. The Committee again authorized the Director to make necessary minor changes or adjustments among these assignments during the year.

The Library has also been adding to its collection of Senate and House journals and session laws of the various states, 176 volumes of Senate journals from eleven states, 155 volumes of House journals from twelve states, and 33 volumes of session laws from three states have been added this year.

During the past year, over 60 manuscripts or rare printed books in distant libraries have been photographed for us; these are on permanent photographic paper, or are mounted on cloth, and all are bound and add greatly to our permanent resources. Most of these photographs are purchased for immediate use by members of the faculty; but scholars in other universities may borrow them by inter-library loan. The following list is selected to show the general character of these purchases:

Hieronymus Sophronius, Eusebius, Saint

Much research material is now being made available on films and the library is purchasing each year for faculty and graduate students. As a subscribing member to the project of filming books in English in the British Museum printed before 1550, the Library has received during the past year approximately 100,000 pages on films and expects to receive a similar amount during the coming year. For using these films a special projector or reading machine has been purchased. The following titles of a few of the films which have been purchased will illustrate the range and general character of these rare books and MSS:

The Library is on the mailing list of over 19,000 departments, agencies, offices, corporations, societies, associations, institutions, etc., located in all parts of the world, though chiefly in the United States, to receive free their current bulletins, reports, and other publications. However, continued effort is necessary to keep our name on some of these lists and to secure additional kinds of material, much of it published many years ago.
During the year the Library sent 11,279 copies (11,943 in 1936-37) of 119 (146 in 1936-37) University of Illinois publications to libraries and other institutions on our gift or exchange lists; other offices on the campus in accordance with exchange arrangements made by the Library, mailed 19,433 (22,469 in 1936-37) copies of 47 (47 in 1936-37) additional publications. New exchanges of publications were arranged with 24 (35 in 1936-37) additional institutions, and exchanges were discontinued with 18 (14 in 1936-37). Regular exchange of publications is now carried on with 1819 foreign and 1515 domestic institutions.

Additional library service to our students and faculty was provided at the beginning of the first semester by an information desk and two special reading rooms.

1. An information desk was established and is maintained by the reference department for about 30 hours a week near the public card catalog and loan desk to serve as a source of information to students and faculty; primarily about books and the library. It has saved time in the use of the catalog, has enabled them to use the library more effectively and has answered questions of general information regarding the campus and library.

2. A collection of seventeenth century material of about 5700 books, pamphlets, and photostats, pertaining principally to editions of Milton's works, was placed in a small reading room on the fourth floor where it is available for use by graduate students and faculty members who are interested in that particular period. At the present time lack of space prevents all our 17th century material being shelved in this room, but as space becomes available, this collection will be enlarged.

3. A special reading room was opened for the purpose of giving better reading facilities to students in their freshman Rhetoric and Physical Education courses. This "7-Day Book Room", from the first was experimental, and has met with the hearty approval of the instructors; it shelves a restricted collection of about 1800 books placed by instructors on reserve for these freshmen or beginning courses. The books are on open shelves in room 104, which is conveniently located to both the North and South reserve rooms. The accessibility of the books gives the student an opportunity to choose his own required reading after examining the books thoroughly with the aid of the Library assistant in charge. The books are available for seven day loan.

From September 1937 to June 1938, the Library spent approximately $8900 for N.Y.A. help and regularly employed about 72 students. Through the assistance of these students a variety of work was accomplished in the different departments. Three examples are listed here.

1. The revision of the subject headings and the replacing of manuscript cards with printed or typewritten ones in the public card catalog, which was started two years ago, has been continued.
2. Additional CCC camp newspapers were secured with the aid of a student typist who wrote the claim letters and cards, and sorted and checked the incoming papers.

3. The securing of volumes and numbers of reports, bulletins, and periodicals due us was continued with the assistance of a student who worked on the project during the preceding year. Much material needed to complete our files was received and information concerning changed titles and out-of-print material was noted on our records.

There are appended to this report, three statistical tables showing the size, the growth, and the recorded use of the Library.
