Pre-war military activity

President James' proposals to Congress on several occasions, last in 1916, were embodied in the National Defense Act provision for the ROTC in land grant colleges. ROTC units were established in February, 1917. Meantime, University personnel, students and largely faculty filled two companies of cavalry of the Illinois National Guard, and in November, 1915, B.W. Benedict, Director of M.E. shops, with permission of the Board of Trustees, organized an "all-Illini" battery of Field Artillery. In July, 1916, Battery F was called for service on the Mexican border, but was mustered out in two months. Battery F later saw service with the 149th Field Artillery, Rainbow Division.

The S.M.A. was established at the University of Illinois April 30, 1917. The Army supplied commissioned personnel, Captain G.W. Krapf to September, 1917, Major W.F. Pearson succeeding. Technical instruction was given by an Academic Guard under a president, first, Assistant Dean H. W. Miller, College of Engineering, succeeded by Stephen O. Andros (acting) then Prof. F.D. Cranshaw, University of Wisconsin. Staff for administration about 35 in 1918. First class (signal corps recruits) begun May 1917; on July 14, 1917 the first class graduated.
